

Amy Martinez, PhD, serves as Scientific Program Officer in Vanderbilt University Medical Center's Office of Research. She provides program/project management for a broad range of biomedical research and education initiatives. Amy partners with shared resource colleagues to advance core capabilities and offer professional development opportunities specifically for core personnel (Vanderbilt's "Core Exchange.") Amy completed her PhD in Biomedical Engineering at Duke University before joining the Office of Research in 2017.